Carleton University's Muslim Students' Association presents donation cheques to Sadaqa Food Bank and CUSA Food Centre from money raised at Islam Awareness Week 2015

(Ottawa, ON) Carleton University's Muslim Students' Association will be holding a small ceremony to present donation cheques to Sadaqa Food Bank and the Carleton University Students' Association Food Centre from money raised at their annual Islam Awareness Week. On Wednesday, June 17th, the ceremony will commemorate another year of fundraising done by MSA.

Islam Awareness Week was held on Carleton's campus from May 16-20. The event garnered hundreds of visitors each day and was also covered by many news outlets in Ottawa. The week has traditionally been used to raise funds for the food banks by various methods, such as fundraising competitions between volunteers as well as daily bake sales. Professors at Carleton have also contributed by matching a dollar for every $2 raised.

The ceremony will commemorate another year of fundraising done during one of MSA's most important events and is a way that the association may give back to such initiatives that serve so many members in the Ottawa community. We invite you to join us on this day.
